INTRODUCTION

Staying Local, Thinking Regional

Collaborative partnerships have the potential to deliver positive benefits for organisations, clients and communities.

Two heads really are better than one when it comes to strengthening communities in a holistic way. By thinking, planning, and working together it is possible for organisations to accomplish far more than they could achieve alone.

However, entering into partnership is not a decision to be made lightly, nor is it a process to be undertaken without adequate planning and appropriate resources.

This document has been designed to provide assistance to organisations in preparing, planning, implementing, reviewing and exiting collaborative partnerships. It includes information, hints, checklists, templates and other resources to streamline these processes, and ensure that partners avoid some of the major pitfalls that can undermine the success of collaborative partnerships.

These resources were developed by the Pine Rivers, Redcliffe and Caboolture Family and Community Consortium, in consultation with other nonprofit organisations in the Pine Rivers, Redcliffe and Caboolture local government areas, using funding from the Queensland Government Department of Communities and Disability Services.
DEFINITIONS

Information Sharing
Exchanging data, reports, facts and similar resources with people or organisations with whom you may, or may not, interact in other ways.

Networking
Connecting with people with similar interests to exchange information, explore opportunities and share best practice.

Networking does not usually involve working together. It requires little time or commitment on the part of organisations.

Cooperation
Working in parallel ways on a task, sharing ideas, activities and resources, with a commitment to collective outcomes.

Cooperation requires a significant time commitment and a high degree of trust between the organisations. There is little visible change in organisational structure.

Collaboration
A formal relationship where the partners agree to work together on a specific project for an agreed purpose. Collaboration has mutual benefits for the partners. It requires agreement about expectations, and a willingness to share ideas, activities and resources, as well as to blur the boundaries between previously discrete areas, such as responsibilities, activities, locations and client groups. The ways in which the partner organisations will work together are documented formally.

Collaboration requires a high commitment of time, and a high level of trust between the organisations. Collaboration includes structural changes, such as financial and personnel allocation.

Tips for Successful Collaboration

Have a Clear Purpose and Expectations
- Desire to achieve the same outcomes
- Work towards a definite goal or outcome
- Identify what is mutual, overlaps and gaps
- Clarify the expectations of each organisation
- Recognise that working together assists rather than hinders
- Don’t collaborate for the sake of it
- Do a SWOT analysis first

Ensure all Partners are Committed to the Working Relationship
- Organisations must want to work together
- If the relationship is not established the partnership won’t go anywhere
- All stakeholders need to be involved
- Be clear about the nature of the relationship
- Know what each service has to offer, personally and professionally
- Understand each service involved in the partnership
- Need equity, transparency, respect and courtesy

Develop Clear Roles, Responsibilities and Guidelines
- Clear roles and responsibilities
- Formal agreements and good documentation
- Good communication and decision making processes
- Structure that ensures partnership relates to ‘positions’ not ‘personalities’
- Processes for all members to participate in the management of the partnership/project
- Review and feedback processes
- Strong financial and statistical accountability

Ensure Shared Values and Goals
- Values and working approaches need to match
- Must have the same attitudes towards clients
- Have shared values, goals and outcomes
- Need compatible philosophies
- Ensure a clear understanding of the frame of reference

Appoint a Designated Driver
- Need a ‘project driver’ who is not tied up in service delivery
- Appoint a manager with the motivation and energy to ‘keep it rolling’
- Delegate responsibility for oversight of consistency and quality issues
- Allow plenty of time to develop all the processes
THE PARTNERSHIP

Considerations that organisations will need to address in any partnership include:

- Do we want to work together?
- How will we work together?
- Working together on a day-to-day basis
- How well did we work together?
- Finalising working together on the project

On the following pages are a number of tables which will assist organisations at each stage of the process. These are guides only; they are not prescriptive. The level of formality and documentation required will depend on the type of partnership that is established.

If the partnership is planned, undertaken and exited well, it has the potential to enable the partnering organisations to 'reach for the stars' individually and collectively.
